Foto Feature (1): Chaplain's Life in America

Marriages, baptisms and providing wholesome entertainment for the children on the base are some of the "extra-curricular" activities in the life of a chaplain. Pictures for this Foto Feature were taken at Ft. Worden, Wash., before Chaplain (Capt.) Forest W. Walls went to Korea. Counseling is one of the chief tasks of a chaplain. Here he not only can help the man with his personal problems, but through talking with him find out his spiritual condition. Week-night prayer services, communion services and planning the details of the Sunday worship services such as the music, organist and special features are left to the chaplain. Chaplain (Capt.) Forest Walls baptizes a serviceman's baby in TOP LEFT picture. Walls counsels with Recruit Arlie Heifrin in TOP RIGHT picture. Being registrar at Seattle Pacific college before re-entering the service gave Walls experience in this phase of chaplain's life. In BOTTOM LEFT picture Walls works with the men in preparing music for the Sunday service. Greeting Sunday school children is another activity as seen in BOTTOM RIGHT picture.—Photos U. S. Army

Nearly every Sunday when an invitation their lives. The next week a follow-up is given men come forward and bow at the process begins to find out how much help altar either to be saved or to re-dedicate the man received.
